CLINICAL TRIALS

Clinical Trials Medical Monitors are skilled clinical development professionals, averaging 10 years of leadership experience in the field. These medical experts are strategically located, providing close and timely assistance to participating site and investigators.

Our medical leaders know most study challenges are unique. Such knowledge only comes from significant experience managing and monitoring trials. Our staff meets challenges with equanimity and poise. Our focus is on the solutions.

Each Medical Monitor optimizes the function of the Operations Team. Their primary responsibilities include (but are not limited to):

- › Providing input on clinical development plans.
- › Reviewing all study team deliverables, such as final narratives and clinical study reports
- › Provides leadership by answering questions about the protocol and the medical management of subject emergencies
- › Reviewing and analyzing safety and efficacy trends
- › Providing therapeutic and project specific training

RECRUITING SUBJECTS

Experienced study coordinators.
Executing successful patient recruitment on time and on budget

- Works through local ethics and regulatory approval processes
- Ensures that the study meets cultural and language demands of working with diverse ethnicities.
